Vote in Senate to Put All Members on Record for or Against Probe.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison.—If the legislature fails to grant authority for an investigation of the unexplained disappearance of Senator Bernard Moran, and of alleged malfeasance in office of certain state officials, Senator Severson declared Tuesday that he would ask a grand jury investigation of the whole state of affairs. He made this statement when some opposition appeared Tuesday to a Senate inquiry.

Sensors Severson, George Skogmo, Anton Kueck and W. A. Titus held a short conference Tuesday morning and all agreed that the proposed investigation should be put under way by introduction of a resolution in the senate by the end of the week.

They declared a record would be made on the subject with a view to determining who would oppose the planned quiz.

Broad Quiz Urged
The executive committee of the local law enforcement committee of 100 adopted a resolution Monday night asking that the senate investigate alleged violations of liquor laws by state officials and legislators. The committee expressed itself as favoring the proposed investigation being fostered by Senator H. J. Severson and Senator Skogmo and urged that the scope of the quiz be broad enough to include any charges.

Will Draft Resolution.

E. N. Hicks, legislative counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, was named by the committee of 100 to represent the organization before the senate investigating committee, if appointed. He will present the report of the local committee.

Senate leaders backing the suggestion to inquiry were to meet again Tuesday to draft the resolution for a investigation.

Janesville Daily Gazette Medals for Heroism

For the purpose of properly rewarding personal heroism in the line of duty, the Janesville Gazette will hereafter, beginning with 1923, award to one member in the Police department and one member in the Fire department of the city, a medal of honor.

Recently we have seen in Janesville an officer of the police department, face fire and after being wounded with a bullet and while other bullets were flying, capture two men and take them to the station. It takes said to do that and the incident has impressed itself upon the public.

What William Seely did others are likely to do. And the Gazette believes these things should be remembered in more than the ordinary way of conversation and resolutions adopted by organizations, official or quasi official.

For the purpose of making the award at the end of the year—the presentation to be made each New Year's Day, the Gazette will seek the cooperation of a committee to go over the records and reports and select the member of the police and fire department who is to receive the medal.

The medal itself will be engraved expressly for the occasion, and will be known as the Janesville Daily Gazette Medal for Heroism. The safety of person and property is entrusted to the police. The protection of property and person against fire is the field of the fire department and in both these the citizens of Janesville must have faith and trust.

When in each department are facing danger always. They go about it with a matter of course. But we should not forget and that is why the Gazette has made this medal an annual reward for unusual and faithful performance of duty.

Janesville Pastors of Many Faiths Opposed to KuKlux as Un-American

In view of the interest in the Ku Klux Klan, stories concerning which have occupied columns of newspapers, the Gazette interviewed all the ministers of the city and secured from all but three their stand on this organization, which are published herewith.

The Rev. Frank J. Scribner of the Congregational church said that what he knew of the Klan was derived from what he read concerning it, much of it from men of good judgment and character. He considered it an extremely dangerous and an extremely unworthy organization. If the Klan stands for Protestantism, he does not care for such support. The fact that they work as they do invites suspicion.

Doesn't Approve of Masks
"I have had no dealings whatever with the Ku Klux Klan, therefore I am not qualified to pass any judgment upon the organization," said the Rev. R. G. Elerson, Baptist church pastor. "I have, however, read of it and I believe it is a bad thing."

Senators Severson, George Skogmo, Anton Kueck and W. A. Titus held a short conference Tuesday morning and all agreed that the proposed investigation should be put under way by introduction of a resolution in the senate by the end of the week.

They declared a record would be made on the subject with a view to determining who would oppose the planned quiz.

Government Boat Routs Wet Fleet on Detroit River

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Detroit.—A boat of the "dry navy" limped into port late Monday, taking on water through leaks in the bow and stern, but none the less a victor in her first clash with the "mosquito fleet" of the Detroit river rum runners. It was the government speed boat P-103, with a rum launch containing 200 casks and 20 kegs of beer in tow, that battered her way through 10 rum speed boats that harassed her, snatched at her liquor prize and attempted to sink her.

Van Dusen had taken the rum launch in tow and was starting up the river with it when the "mosquito fleet" appeared. The rum boats swarmed on every side. The speed craft of the attacking fleet showed dash straight at the P-103 and then "slid," almost upsetting both boats.

Open Up With Revolver
A long gray rum boat, faster than the others, pursued these harassing tactics for a while then, becoming bolder, dashed straight into the P-103, jamming her full astern and opening a seam in the "dry boat."

The gray craft returned to the attack a moment later, ramming the P-103 head-on, jamming the metal bow of the government boat and splitting a plank forward, just above the water line.

This was Van Dusen's cue. He drew his revolver and fired through the gray craft, whereupon her skipper, followed by the rum running armada.

POOLS TO BE KEPT OPEN FOR SUMMER

Group Swimming Will Be Allowed, Under Supervision, School Board Decides.

If the plans of school board members are carried out successfully, every person in Jamesville will have an opportunity this summer to use the high school swimming pool. During the last semester, that they have been completed, various classes of women have been organized through the Y. W. C. A. and other organizations, but only one outside member class has used the pool, that class being the Y. W. C. A. class, having class on Wednesdays from 10 a. m. on any group of 10 or 12 people—men or women—who will provide their own instructor if one is wanted, and under the supervision of the school board. The school board is ever in the pool without a supervisor watching, and who will arrange the time with Supt. E. C. Holt or assistant principal V. E. Klotz, may use the pool as frequently as it wishes, within reason.

Sentiment was unanimous in favor of keeping the pools open during the summer at the school board meeting Monday night. It was found that the hot water heater is only for showering and that in order to keep the pools and rooms always at the right temperature, it will be necessary to keep one boiler going constantly, consuming at least one ton of coal per day. It is thus hoped that public response is enough to warrant this expense. It was considered inadvisable to allow anyone to use the pools unless they were heated.

Details may be arranged with either of the officials named above. In an attempt to cut expense as much as possible, it is hoped that most groups will be able to form for meeting in the afternoon, thus saving lighting expense. Some groups will use the pools, and others will use the rooms, and it is suggested that groups organize under a committee, while it is suggested there will be one group of younger boys.

MISS KING NAMED COMMUNITY SEC'Y

Janesville Girl Succeeds Miss Doane as Trust Girls' Worker Fund.

Miss Helen King will serve as the community girls' work secretary under the provision of the Lovejoy Memorial Trust for one year beginning September 1, this decision having been made by the board of directors at its monthly meeting Tuesday night. Miss King was employed in the spring on a temporary contract following the resignation of Miss Margaret Doane. She has been in charge of Girl Reserve work and other activities at the high school and the directors felt she has been successful, and that this work is assuming community aspects that place it on the basis required by the provisions of the Memorial Trust.

Miss King is a Janesville girl, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George King, 108 St. Lawrence avenue. She left the local high school in her junior service and entered Milwaukee Power college in order to graduate from an institution meeting the entrance requirements of Vassar college. Following her graduation from Vassar, she took a course in the school of social service, University of Chicago. She has recently had several offers to go into social service work elsewhere and the action to retain her was taken Tuesday in order that plans for next year's work at the high school and along other community lines may be laid during the summer.

Cooperate in Paganant
The directors discussed with great enthusiasm plans for the cooperation of the V. C. A. in the fourth of July pageant, for which the association is to furnish a cast of 75 young women and 25 children. They will also assist in other ways.

The service committee reported that rooms had been secured for 20 women and positions for 15 during the past month. The educational committee reported that more than 500 persons had been reached through the series of addresses delivered by Dr. Edith Hale Swift, May 28 and 29.

Camp Still Open
The camp committee reported that more registrations can be taken for the second junior high period, the senior high period and business girls week-ends.

The Young Women's Council will have picnic supper and business meeting Wednesday, June 13, at 7:30. Junior High Girl Reserves will conclude the year's activities with a meeting on the lawn of Mrs. Robert Cunningham 735 South Bluff street, Wednesday at 4 p. m.

LACEY HELD FOR TRIAL, RESULT OF SHOOTING AFFRAY

they got off the train here: Ralph Carney; J. J. Snyder; Walter Swanson and Chief Charles Newman. The defense offered no testimony, although each of the state was subjected to cross-examination by E. H. Ryan, Lacey's attorney.

Met Lacey on Train
"I did not see Lacey at all in Beloit Sunday night," Reynolds testified in response to questioning by Mr. Dunwiddie. He told of how he is working out a commitment law sentence at the Alton hotel here.

Reynolds testified that he first "knew" Lacey, "was when I got on the early morning train out of Beloit Sunday. I saw him but sat in the other end of the coach with Mr. Wilson."

"As the train was leaving Alton, Lacey got up and came toward me saying: 'You don't know you ain't got any business on this train.'"

"I told him I had paid my transportation and he replied: 'You heard me.'"

Reynolds testified Lacey then started to reach in the right side-pocket of his trousers and he, Reynolds, struck him in the face. They both clinched then, he said, and Lacey went back to his seat, opening up his grip.

On cross-examination, Reynolds admitted he had bitten Lacey in the struggle on the train but insisted he did so only after Lacey had bitten him in the right arm.

"This is a new chapter that you didn't know about," Attorney Ryan explained on the side to District Attorney Newman.

"I'm Going to Kill You"
Nothing ensued until the train pulled into Janesville and Reynolds got off the back end of the train and Lacey got off the front end. When he went to Patrolman Dickinson and asked him to take charge of Lacey, which he did, holding him there until Reynolds rounded the corner and saw the academy and West Milwaukee streets.

The next Reynolds could remember was that Lacey caught up to him near the Black Cat pool room and Lacey said to him: "I'm going to kill you," opened up his grip.

The shooting followed. Reynolds fleeing down Milwaukee street toward the corner of Clark and Madison streets, while the first one fired hit Lacey just below the right hip. Lacey surrendered and Reynolds stopped when called to by the police.

Chief Newman testified he told Lacey shortly after the shooting that Lacey was a bad man.

"O God, did I kill an officer and miss that?" Lacey moaned, according to the chief.

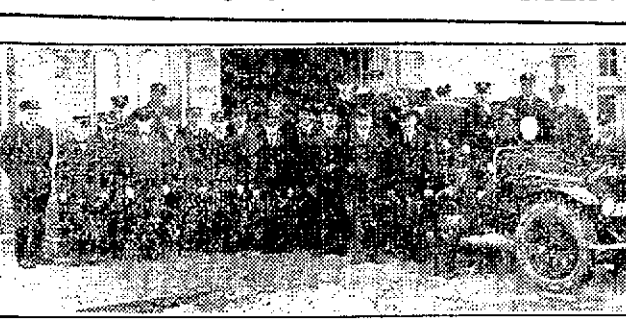

The revolver, containing four expended .38 caliber bullets, and one unexpended, was offered and received in evidence. District Attorney Dunwiddie indicated the trial would be held up pending Patrolman Saxby's release from Mercy hospital where he is still confined.

Lacey Admits Shooting
Questioned after the hearing was over and before returning to jail, Lacey readily admitted having done the shooting, saying he had no love for Reynolds because of his previous actions.

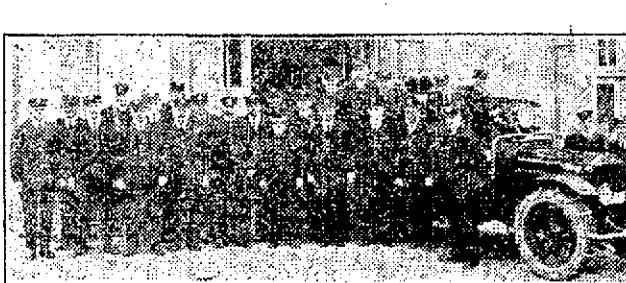

"Why that man's got marks on him when he's been shot, I don't know," Lacey declared. "They tell me from Beloit that I'm in for a killing for missing that guy. He was after me, as he had the gun. I came to get to the Myers hotel after getting off the train—but he waited for me. He black-jacked me in Beloit a couple of months before Christmas and one time he carried me to the Northwestern academy where I work, with his pockets loaded down with stones."

Lacey said his wife, divorced, died last March and he has a son aged 21. He says he has been sending money regularly to the support of his parents who live in Wellington, Kas. Lacey came here from Chicago and has been working as a fire-walker at the Northwestern here the past six years.

100 WAYS To Make Money
By BILLY WINNER
If I Enjoyed Shopping—
I D SHOP for others.
Women living in the smaller cities of this state I know would be glad to learn of my service. There are women in Janesville, too, who do come down to the city often, and there are others who do not like to shop.
I know that if I enjoyed shopping, I'd want to help those who didn't. They'd be glad to have me do their shopping.
So this is what I'd do—I'd run a Want Ad in the Janesville Gazette offering my services as a shopper for other people. I'd charge a small per cent as my commission. Soon I would become so skillful as a buyer that I would save for my customers more than enough money to pay my commission. And when that happened I would run another Want Ad in the Janesville Gazette and get a lot more customers.

The Episode of Senator Barney Moran, et al.

It was pretty well known about the corridors of the capitol, the lobby of the Park and the Belmont, and other places where statesmen of the legislature foregather, that Senator Bernard Moran, of Rhinelander, would vote against most of the tax bills which were ready to be presented to the senate last week. Hence his disappearance was the more marked when he was not present at noon Wednesday, nor yet had he been discovered by the sleuths of the senate on Thursday and on Friday was found hastily making his way to Madison. The story of the lure of the chicken dinner at Prairie du Sac has been told. The escort of a senate officer—a lowly policeman one says, but nevertheless and officer—has also been related.

But—and that is the rub, when the senator thought he was returning to Madison he was going to Boscebel. Can anyone determine what relation the village of Boscebel had to a senator who would vote against the governor's tax bill? What was the liquid refreshment that Mr. Moran says, declares and asseverates, etc., etc., made him mistake a highway to Boscebel, the private capitol of the governor, for the open road to Madison? Boscebel could have had no possible charm for one who has lived in Rhinelander and wintered in the estate, highly polished and wholly lovely Madison. Again, was this liquid of the variety known to the lawmakers of the state as the special brew of Little Italy, or was it the damp dew of the hills of Sauk county mixed with the yellow juice of the squaw corn raised on the sand flats, the container embellished with a nice counterfeit label and carrying a poison voltage so high that it would make an angle worm flinch a rattle-snake?

Assemblyman Spoor, erstwhile champion sturgeon fisherman of the U. S. A., Russia and Kabatogama, from Waushara and Green Lake, more in sorrow than in anger called attention of a great commonwealth to the blatant fact that members of that august body came into the chamber so filled up with corn likker, that they were unable to determine whether they were voting for a resolution to recognize Kamchatka or to widen the tops of ten penny nails. This in itself should demand investigation and the psychological effect of hooch on legislation be determined once and for all.

It is proposed to investigate the case of Mr. Moran and definitely determine the danger limit number of caloric units in a chicken dinner that would cause a man to lose himself on a Sauk County highway. Also it will settle once and for all whether this was a conspiracy or simply one of those cute tricks inspired by the flapper politics which has been played all winter long by the amateur statesmen, with the body of men and the mind of a child. What is needed at Madison is a car load or so of high class and powerful dislfectant.

Moon has put more men out than the sun this summer.

France and the German Offer.

France has refused the latest German offer of settlement and Belgium is equally as stern in refusal. The ultimatum of the two nations, that no further negotiations were contemplated until the passive resistance in the Ruhr had come to an end and sabotage ceased, has placed the matter of peace once more squarely on the shoulders of Germany. France has failed in the Ruhr up to now because of the acts of Germany. The injury to France doubly hurts Germany. France and Belgium are still occupying the Ruhr and there is no likelihood of retirement until settlement is made. On the other hand the condition of both Germany and France continues to grow economically worse. Germany's power of payment has been cut down by the very sabotage and resistance of which the French complain. Here enters the question of bad faith. Does Germany intend to make reparations at all? Had she so intended originally she would have saved her Ruhr property and been able to receive a large credit from the operation of Ruhr industries. If we have peace in Europe it can come only from an acceptance of the situation by Germany. Herr Cuno can stop the sabotage in the Ruhr, that will be the first step. Then with France acquiescing an international committee may aid in determining the means and amount of settlement. Paris nor London nor Brussels can make it possible for a final arrangement for economic peace in Europe. Germany alone can do it and it is up to Germany to stop impossible proposals and take action that is both reasonable and within the possibility of acceptance.

Often all that stands between a gentleman and a hobo is a barber shop.

Recognizing Russia's People.

It may be that we have not recognized Russia as a political factor but with the close of the American Relief Administration's work in Russia, it may be noted that 11,000,000 men, women and children recognize America. Because of the relief administration's work they are alive today. 1,500,000,000 rations were given out since August, 1921; 15,000 hospitals have been equipped and supplied, serving the wants in the time of establishment of more than 80,000,000 cases.

Letter Writing as a Bad Habit

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Washington.—It has been said a wise man seldom writes a letter, and never destroys one. Another authority has it that one should never answer a letter until it is at least 30 days old, and then it will be found that it does not need answering.

It has also been said that letter writing is a lost art—that it went into a decline along toward the latter part of the nineteenth century, when the world entered upon the modern age of hurry and men no longer had or took time for the leisurely observation and contemplation that are essential to the carrying on of a worth-while correspondence. Those who have read the recently published letters of the late ambassador, to England, Walter Hines Page, or those of the late Franklin K. Lane, may take issue with this, but the answer will be that exceptions only prove the rule.

However, those who get their literature largely from the daily press will agree letter writing has become a bad habit with some people.

It has come to pass that the public is never given the facts of a murder, a divorce, an embezzlement, a business or official scandal, without being served with an unsavory mess of correspondence. Reporters were once supposed to be news-hounds, now apparently they have become letter-hounds.

City editors used to send their minions forth with instructions to get all the facts and grab a few photographs, if possible. Now they tell them to dig up the letters in the case, and it is a poor story with any kind of a scandalous angle to it that does not afford its epistolary climax. Publishing the letters may be a bad practice, but the newspapers are not to be blamed primarily—the letters could not be published if they had never been written. Besides, if newspaper readers did not like that sort of stuff, they would not be regaled with it.

Divorce cases and breach of promise suits are particularly productive of this correspondence, and when there is an elderly gentleman amiably diverting himself with some young siren of half his years the truth of the saying about there being no fool like an old fool is almost invariably demonstrated anew. A man who is sound, sane and shrewd in everything else, and whose personal correspondence for years has consisted of an occasional picture postcard, gets into an affair of that sort and he immediately has the most violent attack of letteritis. He takes to pen and ink like a duck takes to water.

And the kind of letters he writes! Passion? Romeo was a cold-blooded, unemotional fish in comparison. Sentiment? His very soul is so simple he drops sugar. Language? He throws it on like a colored boy trying to get the fence whitewashed in time to go follow the circus parade!

And the rash statements he will make and the things he will commit himself to! In business he may be so conservative that he would not commit himself in writing to a declaration that Tuesday almost invariably follows Monday and precedes Wednesday, unless he first consults at least two lawyers. But in love he will dash off sentences that when read to a jury will convict him of obligating himself to commit everything from mayhem to matrimony.

Nor are the epistolary tools all of the one sex. When the evidence is all produced in court, or spread over the front pages of newspapers, it is usually found that the women are just about as careless or indifferent as the men in their letter writing when they are carrying on a tempestuous love affair. In fact, they are generally more verbose and more unrestrained in their written sentiment than men are, and the only reason more men's letters get into print is because men are less prone to preserve such correspondence and are generally on the receiving end of the lawsuits that are instituted.

Theatrical and movie press agents, who are rated as authorities on the subject, agree that male stars receive at least three times as many mash notes or love letters from unknown admirers as are received by feminine artists of equal prominence. Moreover, they say the letters received by men who have achieved stardom are immeasurably more mushy and maudlin.

A man may admire a woman whom he has known only as he has seen her on the stage or on the screen and may write to her in the hope that he may bring about a personal acquaintance, but as a rule that is about as far as he goes until he receives some encouragement. On the other hand, when women or young girls "fall" for a theatrical hero they are apt to deluge him with the most fervid love letters and maintain a one-sided correspondence of that nature for weeks and months. About 50 per cent of the mail delivered daily in Hollywood is said to be of this character.

There is one form of making a written record of folly in which the fair and gentle sex unquestionably excels, and that is in keeping a diary. When a man keeps a diary it is usually for purely literary or historical purposes, or as a business record. But a woman seems animated by an uncontrollable desire to register chronologically every event and every emotion of some affair of the heart. This appears to be an especial weakness of romantics females who sooner or later discover that they love a man so ardently that they just naturally have to shoot him as proof of their affection. Anyhow, such diaries are most frequently produced in court when some false deed is being seeking acquittal on a murder charge, and the jury is being asked to accept homicide as the natural consequence of heart anguish.

It is a long reach from love to politics, but records would indicate that men are as prone to write letters that may damn or ruin them politically as they are to indite the tender missives that come up in divorce and breach of promise suits.

It would seem that a man wise enough and clever enough to attain high official honors would have brains enough to refrain from writing letters or maintaining a correspondence which, if published, might wreck his career. Such is not always the case, however.

Not so long ago two men of opposite political parties who enjoyed nation-wide fame and were rated as exceptionally able were driven out of public life because some one got hold of a batch of letters that could not be explained once they had been published to the world. One is now dead and the other is a soured, embittered individual.

And the moral is, don't write a letter of any kind that you would not be perfectly willing to have the whole world read.

There are other figures equally as interesting and as staggering as to the tremendous work which has been done for the salvation of the lives of the people of Russia by the American government. America has recognized, as it always does, the human life and human integrity in the world's distress.

An exchange says there is room for the white collar man. But there is a heap sight more room for the man with the blue shirt.

Hunting for a lost legislator is merely a precursor of the public's gunning for the whole bunch a little later on.

Isn't it carrying this search and seizure a little too far when the sergeant at arms of the senate breaks up a penurious game by dragging off a member of the legislature?

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE LURE OF MONEY.

Oh, a dollar is a nice thing and a splendid thing to own. In all the coins of all the world no fairer coin is known: But there is something richer than the dollars you collect. And something money cannot buy, and that's the world's respect.

A dollar's worth an honest deed and worth an honest thought. There's joy in every silver coin when honestly it's made; But all the silver dollars which the nation has to spend Aren't worth a troubled conscience, or the goodwill of a friend.

There isn't any money that is worth the price of shame. The richest treasure on the earth is just an honest name. And though you stole a fortune vast, you still would come to grief. You might be very rich in purse, but still you'd be a thief.

Heed not the lure for money when it whispers of deceit. Refuse to touch the silver coin which urges you to cheat. There isn't any dollar worth a pale and haunted face. Or any gold or silver worth the anguish of disgrace.

(Copyright, 1923, by Edgar A. Guest)

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

LET EACH MAN ANSWER FOR HIMSELF. Dear Roy.—At every vaudeville show I have attended in the last four years somebody on the stage must needs give us a "mammy" song. In fact, we have had "mammy" songs by the band, pound and bushel. I don't know what the matter with us daddies—Adolph A. Thomas.

The thing for a prime minister to do to retain his health is to sit tight and let things take their course. They will anyway.

Now that French women have taken to the ancient habit of padding, let their watchword be, "Excelsior."

AN AD FROM BAYSIDE.

Horticulturalist.—Will send it to his advantage to call at my cottage; wish advice about wild climbing vines, also expert in training same to grow as owner who dug vines in wood and set them out has also been incapacitated owing to some peculiar rash. J. M. Green.

That Brooklyn woman went to the extreme limit of pessimism when she hit her husband with a radish.

Who's Who Today

MRS. HILTON PHILLIPS.

The membership of England's historic house of commons now includes a former church girl, the second wife of Mr. H. H. Phillips, who brought this about. Mrs. Phillips, known on the stage as Mabel Russell, worked her way from chorus girl to stardom before quitting the stage to become a wife.

She is the third member of her sex to enter the British house. Lady Astor and Mrs. Margaret Winchcombe are the others who preceded her.

Mrs. Phillips is a conservative and won her seat from Berwick-On-Tweed as such, defeating her husband and labor opponents by a majority of over 5,000. She succeeds her husband, who was elected by the same constituency last November, who was disqualified because of alleged illegal acts on the part of his election agent. It is an odd coincidence that all three of the women house members succeeded their husbands.

Mrs. Phillips has been married twice. Her first husband, was Stanley Rhodes, a cotton magnate. He was killed in an auto accident in 1911 and following his death she took up a stage career. She is now thirty-six and the mother of three children.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

Father's Day Is Pay Day.

Mothers day with its carnations and postal cards has come to mean something in the life of the nation. It expresses a pretty sentiment, and the idea that started it was born of the wholesome love of motherhood. But now comes a new association with a commercial for Father's day—June 17. Its object is to sell neckwear. The country is to blossom out with posters reading: "Buy Dad a Tie."

Father's Day, June 17th.

Of all the cheap, blatant attempts to commercialize sentiment, this one takes the prize. "Buy Dad a Tie. Sure. Buy him two ties. Why be stingy? Buy him a new set of golf clubs. Buy him a new car. Buy him a house and lot. Dad pays the bills. And wear a dandelion in your coat lapel, too, to do him honor.

But why stop with father? Why not have Sister's day and "Buy Sister a Pair of Hosiery"? Or then there are grandmothers, and grandpas, and aunts, and uncles, and cousins for whom purchases can be made on specified days. It is a wonderful idea. While we are after the cash, why overlook any of our relatives?—Milwaukee Journal.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

June 12, 1883.—A man was killed, several were injured, and a great deal of damage was done at Beloit last night by the tornado which entirely escaped Janesville, except for a slight rain storm.—Burr Robbins is back in town, having left his circus at Beaver Dam. He reports good business all spring in spite of unusually wet weather.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

June 12, 1893.—C. C. McLean, this city, is among the members of that family having a country-wide reunion at Chicago today. He will be in the evening line. William Phillips was stung by a footpad and robbed of $150 in cash at noon today in the doorway of his employer's yard. He was found unconscious some time later.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

June 12, 1903.—Forty-nine students completed their high school work last night and were presented diplomas by President W. S. Jeffris of the school board. Twenty-eight were young men, a larger percentage than ever before. Thomas J. Ackerman was valedictorian. The exercises consisted of a number of themes and orations by graduates.

TEN YEARS AGO

June 12, 1913.—Leslie Benjer, Harry Siegel, John Grant, Roy Cannon, Benjamin Kuhlow, Frank Bledsoe, Walter Broge, George Razook, Harold Mohr, Vesta Bradley, Alta Field, Hazel Myhr, Grace Miller, Olive Reynolds, Lucille Hyde, Evelyn Kalmelage, Lola Williams and other girls took part in the senior play, "Taming of the Shrew," at the high school last night.

JOY OF THE RANSOMED

The ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.—Isaiah 35:10.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

T. B. AND THE WEATHER-PHOBIA

In the course of his narrative, "How I Won the Battle with Tuberculosis," Dr. W. B. Brady, an originally published in the Journal of the Outdoor Life for June, 1921, and subsequently issued without many changes by the Tuberculosis Society of Detroit and Wayne County, Michigan, as a pamphlet free to residents of Wayne County, five cents a copy to other persons. Mr. J. C. Stocker, tells many of the secrets, or more accurately speaking, the truths upon which a successful fight against this most common of all serious diseases may be waged, any who have already quoted several of these truths which are available to Mr. Stocker's story. One was to the effect that recovery is best assured by having the regular attendance and guidance in all things of a good doctor of medicine or no medicine. Too many who lose the battle with tuberculosis through their own unawareness of the secrets of doctors and medicine alone.

Another truth which Mr. Stocker's experience teaches is that rest is the best remedy for the tuberculosis patient. It is not a luxury, but a necessity. The patient must learn the importance of rest before it is too late. I fear the ordinary tuberculosis patient is not so much at home in the knowledge of many things "which ain't so."

It seems almost as difficult to make a tuberculosis patient understand and accept the truth of the great old adage in his battle with it as it is to make the layman the rudiments of sanitary or surgical asepsis.

Here is another great truth which Mr. Stocker's story and experience bring out: "The knowledge that winter weather was not injurious to a tuberculosis patient has resulted in my feeling all fear of the changing weather conditions, and so-called 'bad weather' no longer makes me feel gloomy or depressed. I go out in the sun and get my share of the sun's rays. I have lost all fear of the weather changes aided my recovery as much as any one else thing, except the prolonged rest in bed."

Well, your question, which is a kind of twentieth century modification of the old adage, "What's the weather?"

Girl of Ghost Mountain

By J. ALLAN DUNN

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Mary Burrows, with a giant Swede girl, Thora, lives on the plateau on top of Ghost Mountain in Arizona. Peter Sheridan, New York lawyer with tuberculosis, has bought a ranch at Ghost Mesa and is recovering his health. His inseparable companion is Red Jackson, foreman of the ranch. They rescue a Chinaman, Quong, from the clutches of Hollister, a cattle rustler. Peter finds a way to the ranch on top of the mountain and follows an attempt of the bad gang of Hollister to annoy the women. Red falls in love with Thora. Hollister, swearing revenge, kidnaps Mary and takes her to the Bonanza mine. On the way he drunks poison messal and going blind, staggers off and is left alone. Quong is rescued later by Peter. "Who has ridden after her," says a marvelous girl in the cave, and she tells Quong who was once the keeper of a gambling house in San Francisco, reveals the location of the caves to the gold hunters ready to be taken out. Sheridan and others form an expedition to go in search of the treasure.

They caught sight of Sheridan looking at them from the platform. The forest reined in his mount viciously. He turned and turned in his saddle. The others plunged along beside him, coming to a halt. The man who turned was Peter. His dark face twitching with a hate his drunkenness had urged him to express and at the same time checked. He spat in Sheridan's direction, he snarled and he clutched at the holster attached to the belt. Sheridan, more sober or more cautious, clapped his hand above Peter's jabbering at him excitedly.

The whistle of the train sounded and it appeared, entering the freight yards. Pedro drove himself up in his saddle, and, charging the train with venom, shouted three words at Sheridan:

"Hasta luego, señor." (Before long!)

Sheridan took no notice of it. He implied threat, and Peter, to his exasperation, as if he had been part of the view.

Engine and cars shut off the group and Sheridan fled abroad. By the time he had set himself at the window the three had spurred off.

"It is lucky for you that I wasn't Jim Lind," thought Sheridan. "I would have been apt to construe that as 'starting something.' But I don't think you have much enterprise except in your cups. He was glad, however, to know that the gate was being fixed in the tunnel that afternoon. Jackson, driving him home with his packages, told him that the job was completed.

"Didn't forget the candy," asked Red anxiously.

"No. Nor some magazines. Got one you'll like to read, Red. Tomorrow we'll go."

Sheridan had no hesitation about telling Mary Burrows and Thora the story of Juan Mendoza. Quong had given him full discretionary powers and he knew that here, if any place, confidence would not be abused but taken as a manifest of friendship.

He told the story much as Quong had done and the audience listened with fascinated, listening interest in both the tale and its teller.

"I am so glad," said Mary Burrows. "I can't tell you how glad I am sure it will turn out true. It must turn out true. It means everything to you."

"Not quite everything," said Sheridan. "The words slipped out. He had not meant to express himself. Mary Burrows had greeted him cordially enough but there was a certain air of constraint about her that Thora shared. Red and Quong and it looked at Sheridan in puzzled fashion more than once.

It had first shown itself after the thanks about the gate, which the girls had only noticed that morning.

As long as we are going to stay here, it will make us—me at least—feel more secure," said Mary. "When the steel is stolen—and recovered—it is as well to put a lock on the door, I suppose." Sheridan had not noticed any special emphasis in her words. He had been too full of his news, anxious to see how she would respond to the promise it held for his project. Now the speech recurred to him with a new meaning.

"You said, 'as long as we are going to stay here," he said. "Are you getting tired of the Hidden Home-land and the West?"

"It is not that," she answered eagerly. "I am not tired. I feel at home here now. Just at first the mountains seemed to shrug their shoulders at me but now they are friendly."

He thought her still jarred from her experience with Hollister. He could not judge of the effect that might have upon her sensitiveness. It had been a horrible experience, borne by her so bravely that he had treated it too lightly, as one that would pass like the shadow of a cloud. And he did not want to wound her by telling her that he went on to tell what he had planned with the Commissioner.

"You have only to sign these papers and take them to him the next time you go to Ploche," he said. "There are some small fees and then you will have your deed recorded and feel you own the place. I imagine records in your grandfathers' day were few and far between. A man held his own by the force of his good right hand. He was conscious of her looking at him, curiously, anxiously. Thora had gone out on the veranda with Jackson. The girl gazed lovingly at the room.

"Dear grandpa," she said, "I shall feel like a desertor, if I go."

"If you go?" Sheridan realized, with swift enlightenment, the stress he put into his exclamation. With the whole of the glamour of Quong's gold had departed, the glow of his project faded, the desire to aid his fellow man and reclaim the land died. He knew that, without this slinky lady, the Girl of Ghost Mountain, sitting opposite to him, her face a cameo in the light of the lamp, everything else was as dust and ashes. She looked swiftly at his face and averred hers.

Waffles—One and three-fourths cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon melted or liquid fat, one cup milk, two eggs, whites and yolks separated. Sift dry ingredients, make hollow in center and drop in yolks of eggs, fat and milk; beat well. Bake whites stiff, fold in last.

Biscuits with Cheese—Use recipe for ordinary baking powder biscuits and before adding the milk to the dry ingredients put in from a quarter of a cup to half a cup grated cheese. Add milk and bake as usual.

Stuffed Beef Tongue—If a fresh tongue is used salt the water in which it is cooked. Wash tongue, put in eight-quart kettle. Use enough water to half cover, and cook at simmering temperature for two hours. A fresh tongue and four hours if a corned tongue is used. When tender peel off skin, brush over with beaten egg and sprinkle with bread crumbs and brown in oven.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please tell me if there is a law concerning cruelty toward children?

Yes, there is a law preventing cruelty to children. If you know of a case, report it to the police.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl in my teens and I admire a certain young man. He seems to like me quite well. There is going to be a weiner bake in this town and each girl is supposed to invite a boy.

What would you say when you invited him? Would it be correct to send him a note informing him about the weiner bake? BETTY.

It would be correct to write a note inviting the boy to the weiner bake, or to ask him personally. Simply tell him when and where it will be and ask him to go with you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 15 years old and I am working my first position as a stenographer. There is a young man in the office who seems to be interested in me and he has invited me to go to the theater with him some night. I have asked my employer about him and he says he is a very fine man. I did not tell my employer about the invitation. Would it be correct for me to go to the theater with him?

THELMA P.

There is no reason why you should not accept the invitation to go to the theater with the young man in the office. It might be well, however, to invite him to call at your home before you accept his invitation.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young married woman. My mother is a widow and my husband and I are living with her. I also have an unmarried sister at home. For some reason my mother and sister do not seem to like my husband. I cannot see why, because he tries to do what is right and he is just as good to me as a man could possibly be. He says he is not happy enough, and he wants to go housekeeping by ourselves. When I talk of it to my mother she simply won't listen to such a thing. She cries and seems to feel so terribly that I really don't know what to do. My mother has had a great deal of unhappiness and I don't want to cause her any more. Under the circumstances, what would you advise me to do? MRS. H. G.

I would advise you to go to housekeeping with your husband. It is not all fair to him to remain in the home of your mother with conditions as they are. Of course your mother thinks it will break her heart to lose you, but after the change has been made she will adjust herself to it and she will find just as much happiness in her visits to you and your visits to her. She and your sister will be company for each other, and so you do not have to think of your mother as being alone. Just as much in your way is clear and there is only one course for you to follow.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: A young man has asked me to go out with him some Sunday for a picnic. Nothing was said about the lunch. Am I supposed to take it? I don't know whether that would be correct or not. Usually the girl takes the lunch to a picnic, but sometimes it is not necessary for her to do so. I would advise you to ask the young man if he would like to have you bring a lunch.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please tell me if there is a law concerning cruelty toward children?

Yes, there is a law preventing cruelty to children. If you know of a case, report it to the police.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl in my teens and I admire a certain young man. He seems to like me quite well. There is going to be a weiner bake in this town and each girl is supposed to invite a boy.

What would you say when you invited him? Would it be correct to send him a note informing him about the weiner bake? BETTY.

It would be correct to write a note inviting the boy to the weiner bake, or to ask him personally. Simply tell him when and where it will be and ask him to go with you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 15 years old and I am working my first position as a stenographer. There is a young man in the office who seems to be interested in me and he has invited me to go to the theater with him some night. I have asked my employer about him and he says he is a very fine man. I did not tell my employer about the invitation. Would it be correct for me to go to the theater with him?

Mitchell Defies Leonard to Bout Without a Purse

Milwaukee—Pinkie Mitchell, Milwaukee, junior welterweight champion, is willing to box without remuneration at a bout with West Side Boys' club, Chicago, provided Benny Leonard, lightweight champion in his opponent. Announcement of this offer was made Monday following Leonard's recent offer to engage in a similar capacity.

A message was sent to promoter Jim H. H. Chicago, signifying Mitchell's willingness to provide, however, insistently, that Leonard be his opponent.

"It occurs to me that Benny's offer is a good one," said Leonard, "but he might have a string tied to it, providing for an easy bout with a 'soft' antagonist," said Billy Mitchell, manager of his brother boxer, "in view of the extreme unpopularity of Leonard of the recent bout which yielded practically nothing to the cause for which it was fostered, a return engagement should be interesting and result in a tidy purse for the boys."

By FRANK SINCLAIR

FAME does peculiar things when it strikes suddenly. When 20-year old Art Birch crashed across the finish line and won the 100-mile automobile race at Milwaukee Sunday, it was so unexpected to him that he wilted with bashfulness. When the movie camera operators broke through the crowd of spectators, the youngster at first refused to pose, saying: "Aw, I don't want a picture. My arms are sore." When the kid was seen by newspaper reporters, he was just concerned about the fact that his classy white overalls were so filled with oil, dirt and grit that he said: "Gosh, this good suit isn't any good any more."

IT'S FUNNY what endurance and perseverance will do in athletics, and sports of every sort. Take, for instance, the winner of third place in the century auto grind Sunday. For mile after mile "Hooks" Goeckel of Carrollville, Wis., just ambled along at a pace of about 42 to 50 miles an hour in his blue Packard. The crowd gave him the laugh, but he kept right on ambling. Not once did he stop for gas or give up repairs of any nature. It looked as if he were entirely out of it, but by just continuing to run he got into the money.

TAKE another illustration. "Speedy" Perch of Milwaukee developed engine trouble immediately at the start of the race. Several times he tried to get his Dort Special under way only to have it backfire. He was more than 50 miles behind when he finally pulled and spit onto the oval. The crowd roared hysterically and with some derision. He smiled back and kept going. Although there were cars that covered much more than his, he was still going at the finish and because he earned a fifth place. "Never say die," is a good thing to believe and follow.

Purdue beats Indiana in baseball, 22-5.

Diamond Sparkles (By A. E.)—In last 10 games at home Yanks have lost seven and stand only four games ahead of re-awakened Philadelphia. The Yankees have dropped two out of three to Chicago and one to Washington, and Monday were defeated by Cleveland, who made it two out of three. A-B—Manager Huggins, on his last appearance in Cleveland, has taken three stars from Lou Gehrig, Columbia first baseman, began Monday night, Tuesday night, Friday night, and Saturday night. He will get into uniform, and Ed Vanderbeck, Fordham catcher, will follow soon.—White Sox beat Boston 6-4, jumping a sack and holding long despite threats of Ted Sox to retaliate. Cubs made it four straight from Boston, 10-1, and six consecutive victories by disappointing Jess Barnes, former pitcher, on his last appearance in Boston uniform.—Cubs are one point behind St. Louis and only 12 below Cincinnati in first division.—All other games in majors prevented by bad weather.—A.C. Elliott, star catcher of Wichita Falls club of Texas league, purchased by Cubs and will report Wednesday.—Babe Ruth threw score into Sherrod Smith, former Brooklyn player, who hit with a double, by busting double on first trip to plate.—After that Babe was given four intentional passes.—Manager Tris Speaker started hitting, and Tuesday night victory over Yankees.—Earl Smith, former Giant catcher, now with Braves, playing good game since joining Boston club, bagging two doubles and a home run, and hitting the ball hard on other two times up.—Dovey McClellan shines at short for White Sox, pounding ball consistently and holding his own.—Babe Ruth, light and double, Jack Quinn Monday, and accounted eight chances in field without wobble.—Eddie Collins, premier second baseman in American league, showed no indication of losing his batting eye against Red Sox, smacking three hits and making sacrifice in five times up, and his fielding was brilliant.—Wm. Lerry, star first baseman on "Greasy" White Bellevue (K.Y.) C. club, signed by St. Louis Americans for trial in George Siler's position.

Three of star drivers of Sunday's state 100-mile auto champion, enter Cedarburg Jaunta next Sunday.

FORMER OFFICER OF LOCAL LEGION SUED BY SPOUSE

Charging that Theodore Corrado, Beloit, formerly of Janesville, misrepresented to her the facts of marriage laws in Wisconsin and Illinois, Mrs. Hazel Corrado has filed suit for annulment in the Rock county circuit court.

Hazel Weibel was granted a divorce by Judge John B. Clark, Beloit, Sept. 14, 1922, and was married four days later at Waukegan, Ill., to Theodore Corrado, according to the information in the complaint.

Mr. Corrado now charges that his husband represented fraudulently that the restriction on marriages a year after divorce decree was granted was operative in Wisconsin only, and that in making application at Waukegan they gave their residence as Milwaukee, when they were residents of Beloit. She charges that she was ignorant of the legal requirements and signed the blank not knowing of the false information set forth.

Corrado was formerly quartermaster of the American Legion post in Janesville.

COURT FIRM IN LION CASE

Washington — The supreme court Monday again refused to modify in any way its former opinion in the Lion Bonding and Surety company case.

Spoiled Beverage Thrown Away at Croak Brewery

Two federal officials here last week making a trip to the Croak brewery many rumors of action in respect to the prohibition laws and internal revenue investigations which have been going on for months in the state.

The Croak brewery has ceased to make beer or beverages of any kind. There was a supply of beverage on hand which had soured and before destroying it was necessary to have federal officials present. They came last Friday and the officials saw that the spoiled liquor was thrown away thus closing the Croak business up finally.

State officials of the prohibition department have been investigating the sale of "Wurt" a beverage which requires only the addition of a little water to make it a four per cent. The state has been stopped an attempt to make some illicit drinks have been found against makers.

JANESVILLE MEN AMONG 3,500 IN SHRINER CONCERT

Two prominent Janesville musicians, Burr W. Tolles and George J. Hatch, played cornet and bass respectively, in a massed Masonic band of 2,500 pieces before President Harding and General Pershing at one of the features of the Shriners' national convention at Washington last week. The concert, participated in by 140 bands from all sections of the country, was declared the greatest in history, even exceeded, according to Washington critics, the massed concert given by 1,200 navy musicians during the World war.

On Thursday night, the Tripoli Temple band of Wisconsin and the Denver band joined in playing for a monster pavement dance on Pennsylvania avenue. The band were one and one-half miles away from the scene of the dance, the music being carried by huge amplifiers. It was also broadcast from Arlington radio station. Thousands of the greatest and most joyed in the great community dance, doing everything from the Virginia reel to the tiddie.

Washington outside herself in decorations and electrical effects. It was declared one of the most gorgeous conventions in the nation's history. The infantry, cavalry, artillery, sailors and marines participated in the various parades, with airplanes flying overhead.

MORE HELP SOUGHT FOR POST OFFICE

Cunningham Points to Big Increase in Business in Seeking 2 Clerks.

Raising his request on figures which show 41 per cent increase in all postal business done here this past May as compared with May a year ago, postmaster Cunningham has asked the national postoffice department for two additional clerks.

With the money order business showing an increase of 3 per cent this May, with the general postal receipts more than 16 percent higher, and every part of the business showing a gain of not less than 10 percent, postmaster Cunningham feels that as long as his requests so far for a new building, an addition, or extra working space in any way, have been refused, the least that can now be granted is additional help. Where he will put two more clerks, with quarters at present in the post office so crowded that for a stranger to attempt to get from one side of the building to the other is a precarious undertaking, is a matter for him to work out.

No Time for Records. A recent compilation by the national department of figures from 50 postoffices in the nation, showed that the percentage of increase was but 11 percent, so that Janesville is almost seven times above the average of the 50 largest cities in the nation. "It is impossible," said Mr. Cunningham in his request to national authorities, "to keep records and files up to date with the present help in the office. All workers are kept busy continually handling the business as it comes in, and there remains no time for arranging records."

VETS MAY ENLIST IN TANKS FOR YEAR

Men with previous service in the national guard will be enlisted for one year periods in the Janesville Tank corps, now conducting a recruiting campaign that the strength may be raised to the minimum under which it will be allowed as a unit to attend Camp Douglas this summer.

Lieut. Pearl Grimshaw is anxious to get some of the "old gilder" into the Janesville company. The head outfit which has been at the fair grounds has been installed in the new headquarters in the old high school building, and members of the corps are enjoying concerts.

The first real drill in the new quarters was held Monday night. Louis Kent, who stopped railroad trains here Thursday and Friday by standing in the middle of the tracks for no reason whatever, was picked up by the police Saturday night on North Bluff street and was held pending the arrival of relatives from Chicago. He was recently a patient in Ashurst hospital at Elgin and his queer actions attracted local police, although he talked rationally. Patrolman August Serend arrested him as he was going about the city barefoot.

COUNTY LEADING STATE IN PAVING

Highway Commission's Report Shows Rock Doing Most Per Day.

Rock county's highway department is leading the state in the amount of concrete laid, according to a recent report from the division engineers of the Wisconsin highway commission. The county has averaged 504 feet a day since starting paving operations on the new sections on highway 10—Janesville to Edgerton.

The maximum laid in a day's run is 679 feet, according to Commissioner Charles E. Moore. During the past week the 2.75 miles out of Leydon to the paved section of last year south of Evansville was completed, it will be another two weeks before this newly paved stretch will be open for traffic. There remains 3.5 miles on the upper end into Evansville before the shift is made to route 20, west of Janesville. The contract for the extension of the paving through Evansville has been let and paving started. It is reported by the county officials.

Equipment Is Moved

The county force, composed of 49 men, is changing the truck, pipe line and other paving equipment this week and in the event favorable weather continues, paving will be resumed Wednesday or Thursday. The same pile will be used, the trucks being north from the material machinery and the pavement started at Evansville and road laid south to connect with the 1922 paved section.

Beloit Road "Explosion." Expansion of the concrete during the hot weather caused an "explosion" of the pavement on the Beloit-Janesville road recently. The hot weather expanded the cement to such an extent the pressure caused a sharp upheaval. People living near report that the ground trembled like an earthquake when the cement burst. Repairs are being made by the county and eventually one entire block will have to be taken up and repaved. This stretch has felt expansion joints every 35 feet and yet
